Fall Welcomed With Invitation To Freedom

INVITATION TO FREEDOM was the theme of the 1973 fall conference held at Mt. Saint Michaels. Bill and Mary Lee Tatum from Virginia were the featured speakers on such topics as The Drama Of Freedom, The Roots Of Freedom, The Ethics Of Freedom, and The Price Of Freedom. In addition to these major topics, smaller discussion groups were conducted by Whitworth faculty members. These groups focused on the effect of freedom in politics, history, blacks, women, and the Bible.

Focus Days Presents:

*Lloyd Ogilvie
Sonny Salsbury*

Lloyd Ogilvie and Sonny Salsbury came to Whitworth Oct. 16-18 to conduct the Fall Focus Days. Dr. Ogilvie, senior pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Hollywood Calif., spoke at both Forums and Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, in Baldwin-Jenkins, and Warren. Life As It Was Meant To Be, Living Out One's Faith, and The Challenge Of Being were his major topics. Sonny Salsbury, Youth Director at the First Presbyterian Church of Yakima, led Whitworth students in evening singing during the week. On Thursday, he was joined by his group "The Reflection," and performed in the Hub that evening.

Forum Presents Variety Of Experts

Forum is a series of educational and cultural programs scheduled to provide an element of insight and point of view from a variety of experts on the campus and across the nation. Forum brings contemporary speakers to the Whitworth community, giving students and faculty first hand resource personalities on the outstanding issues of the year.

One of the most controversial speakers during the fall semester was Florence R. Kennedy. Her appearance caused a variety of pro and con reactions from students, resulting in a good deal of press coverage on and off campus.

In addition to speaking at Forum, some guests lectured in classrooms, as baseball's Milwaukee Brewer pitcher Jim Colburn does below.

The Effect Of Gamma Rays On

RUTH: I said the one they're going to laugh at is Mama. She was just like you and everybody thought she was a big weirdo.

BEATRICE: Half-life! If you want to know what a half-life is just ask me. You are looking at the original half-life! I got one daughter with half a mind; another one who's half a test tube; half a husband—a house half full of rabbit crap; and half a corpse! That's what I call a half-life, Matilda! Me and cobalt-60! Two of the biggest half-lives you ever saw!

RUTH: It says that I exaggerate and tell stories and that I'm afraid of death and have nightmares.

Man-In-The-Moon Marigolds

BEATRICE: Do you want to know the nightmare I used to have? I never had nightmares over the fights with your father or the divorce or his thrombosis—he deserved it—I never had nightmares over any of that. Let me tell you about my nightmare that used to come back and back: Well, I'm on Papa's wagon, but it's newer and shinier, and it's being pulled by beautiful white horses, not dirty work horses—these are like—circus horses with long manes and tinsel—and the wagon is blue, shiny blue. And it's full—filled with yellow apples, grapes and green squash. You're going to laugh when you hear this. I'm wearing a lovely gown all covered with jewels—and my hair is piled up on top of my head with a long feather in it—and bells are ringing, huge bells swinging on a gold braid strung across the back of the wagon, and they're going, DONG DONG, DONG DONG, DONG DONG. And I'm yelling Apples! Pears! Cucumbers!

RUTH: That doesn't sound like a nightmare to me.

BEATRICE: And then I turn down our street and all the noise stops. This long street with all the doors shut tight and everything crowded next to each other and there's not a soul around. And then I start getting afraid that the vegetables are going to spoil, and that nobody's going to buy anything, and I feel as though I shouldn't be on the wagon, and I keep trying to call out. There's not a sound. Not a single sound. Then I turn my head and I look at this house across the street. I see an upstairs window. The curtains slowly part, and I see the face of my father.

RUTH: Is Nanny going to die here?

BEATRICE: No.

RUTH: What are you going to do with her?

BEATRICE: Get rid of her. Oh, God.

RUTH: Are you crying?

BEATRICE: What's left for me, Ruth?

RUTH: What, Mama?

BEATRICE: What's left for me?

TILLIE: She's going to go. I saw her eyes start to go back!

BEATRICE: Hi nanny, how are you honey? How would you like to go on a long trip?

Black Student Union Sponsors Basketball, Black Week, Black Life Dorm

Bernard Harper

Three major events occurred this year involving the BSU. The BSU-Student Development basketball game held in December, and Black Week, held in the spring, are two annual events sponsored by the BSU. Black Week acquaints students with the black world through soul food, soul music, and other entertainment.

A new Black Life Dorm was organized in the spring semester. It involved nearly all blacks, with a few whites living in a minority situation. In addition to studies into the black world and black art, students prepared their evening meals which usually consisted of soul food.

And Home

ASWC

The Student Government at Whitworth College is somewhat different from student governments at other colleges. Whitworth's ASWC is set up in the same fashion as a large business or corporation. Each student attending Whitworth fulltime is required to pay student body fees. Payment of these fees entitles the student to a share in the governance of the student body's activities. As is true in a corporation, those who own shares are known as stockholders.

With this type of governance set-up we have a truly representative form of Democracy. Each person is his own representative and is given the responsibility to become well versed in ASWC activities and to participate according to his own interests.

Above: "Ho Down" Whitworth style. Square dancing was one of the favorite activities, as students danced barefoot to songs such as "Oh Jonny Oh."

A Time To Dance

During the first few weeks of school students were kept busy going to various activities. New friends were met, old were re-united, and all were joined together for some time of fun. Roller skating, swimming, dances, picnics, and other activities spotlighted the weeks events. The freshmen were given their usual warm welcome and participated in activities that carried on through the night. The freshman men got their voices together and did some lovely serenading for the girls and during meals graciously escorted the ladies to and from Saga. But all fun must come to an end, but the memories will still linger.

A Time To Play

Various parties were held during the Halloween week. Pictured above and at right is the McMillan-Jenkins Haunted House party sponsored annually for the children from Hutton Settlement. Students from both dorms constructed the haunted house which hosted 40 children, and the next evening, over 200 campus students.

Winter came with its usual snowfall and cold temperatures, bringing out the creativity in students. Some people found it difficult to tolerate the weather, while others found it difficult to tolerate some people, as shown below.

Sen. Jackson Speaks On The Energy Crisis

On January 11, 1974, Senator Henry M. Jackson (D. Washington) spoke on the energy crisis in the Hub foyer. Later, he responded to students' questions.

L'Atelier de Spokane

"It is no longer an extra-curricular option for Whitworth students to be involved in the life of the local community. Whitworth is not a preparation for life: it is life, with adult responsibilities and opportunities. This means that our students must be visibly and deeply involved in the life of the Spokane community, and not as observers but as participants. We are seeking many new positions and circumstances for our students to feel the real burdens, pressures and rewards of business and industry, social work and other vocational life as an integral part of their liberal education at Whitworth. In the process we believe our students will enrich and contribute to the health and growth of the Spokane community.

David K. Winter
Academic Dean
Whitworth College

In keeping with the philosophy espoused by Dr. Winter, Whitworth College sponsored a non-profit art gallery called L'Atelier de Spokane. The purpose of L'Atelier was to enable students and others to gain limited or in-depth work experience through participation in a functioning gallery. The gallery gave participants practical experience in the selection, arrangement, and lighting of works of art; selection and display of ceramics and sculpture; business operation and public relations; as well as design/advertising problems, such as brochures, invitations, and announcements.

Also in the gallery was the art studio of Ms. Susan Goodenow.

Materials for the studio were donated by Ziegler Lumber Co., United Paint Co., Dahlen Electric, and Carl and George Mielke. Time was donated by Mr. Herbert Hamblen, Mustash Graphics, and L.H. Peden.

The Gridiron

This year was the Whitworth Pirate's first chance to challenge for the Northwest Conference Football Championship. During the preseason workouts, Captain of the team, George Perry (#19), felt that the Pirates could have a champ team this year.

After the first couple of losses, the team needed to regroup and analyze the situation. By mid-season the players had pulled together and matured enough to feel consistent in their abilities.

Coach Hugh Campbell and team

Coach Campbell was a coaching assistant at both UW and WSU before coming to Whitworth.

He spent his first two years here building up the team, and brought the Pirates up to a 7 and 2 season in 1972.

Execution of a fine tackle

The Percussionauts perform during halftime at Joe Albi Stadium Shriner's Game.

This year, says George Perry, the Pirates have the best bunch of rookies he's seen in his four years of football.

The frosh played a lot, and the team should be even better next year. In every position, at least one player will be returning.

The best advice: Take 'em one game at a time, and play as a unit.

The Mat

"The team was young this year," Coach Mark Uhrenholt said, "being made up of primarily freshmen wrestlers. Eight weight classes were filled, but we had to forfeit two of the lower weight classes at each match. It's really hard to lose twelve points this way and then try to come back and win, but we did it a couple of times."

"Wrestling is one of the toughest sports physically," Uhrenholt said, "and I'd have to say one of the most important aspects of it is dedication."

Women's Varsity Volleyball Improves With Season

With strength in returning members and added practice time the women's varsity volleyball team improved markedly over last year's team.

With only two home games, road play was termed as "a meetable challenge, knowing we had support at home." Members of the 1973 team included: Patty Evans #32, Linda Russell #24, Michelle Graham #22, Lynn Kelley #21, Robin Bradley #14, Mindy Cook #15, and Cheryl Ryals #33.

Members of the B team included Betsy Straeter #13, Karen Mork #35, Julie Ferrel #11, Mary Stone #41, Mona Saberano #23, Roxanne Hancock #42, Cheryl Blank #12, and Joyce Kessinger #25.

New Coach, Young Team; "A Willingness To Work"

Although her Women's Varsity Basketball team had four tough pre-season games, Coach Anderson stated that "It's good preparation for the upcoming season." The team was hurt with the loss of two players, Helen Tait (tallest member of the squad), and Sheri Ausmor, but it was hoped that both would be ready for action during the regular season. In addition to the fact that it was a very short team, it was also a relatively young team with only one senior and two juniors. "We've got a young team this year that's anxious to play," Dr. Anderson stated. "Our willingness to work is the biggest thing we've got going for us."

1973; The Year In Retrospect

To sit down and write about the year 1973, and attempt to include all events which took place in that year, and get it all on one page, is a task impossible for this journalist. To analyze the year in economic, political, or social terms, to say it was prosperous, or preposterous, and be correct, is also impossible.

Nineteen hundred and seventy three had its violence, phenomenons, intrigue, and corruption. The most controversial issue for Americans was, and still is as this goes to press, Watergate. Watergate blew wide open in mid-April, and since that time we have seen the resignation of one Vice President and serious Congressional talk of impeaching Richard M. Nixon. Spiro T. Agnew avoided the courts with a simple no contest plea to a felony charge of federal income tax evasion. Other prominent figures met their political demise as Watergate evidence piled up. Through it all the President managed to retain a self assuredness that was to some suspicious, and to others, steadfastness.

Other issues also rocked the world. The new Mid-East war of October frightened Americans. What would happen to our petroleum supplies? We had been warned early in 1973 that there would be an energy shortage, but until it actually hit, we squandered as always. Although the Arabs lost a military war, they found that blackmail could be nearly as effective, if not more so, than sophisticated tanks and jets. Secretary of State Henry M. Kissinger was in the middle of the peace negotiations trying his damndest to settle things, to bring congeniality to the world, and oil to the states. Superficially, it may appear that he succeeded. However this editor is safely betting that when the Arab nations recover from this last embarrassment, they will fly over the Suez once again with their Soviet jets in an attempt to bring Israel to its knees.

Repercussions of this war were felt over the entire world. The center of attention now focussed on the Middle East, and not on Viet Nam, even through Southeast Asia was, and still is, as bloody as it has ever been. The energy crisis caused Britain to eventually go to a three day work week. This brought political and economic protests. Although communism isn't strong in Great Britain, the Labor Party is, and communists have strong influence in this party. People became frightened, fearing perhaps this motherland of the United States would fall into the hands of the enemy.

At home, energy became short. In late December independent truckers throughout the entire nation began to shut down in protest of the new 55 m.p.h. speed limit, high diesel prices, and the scarcity of such diesel. Some truckers who refused to shut down met unfortunate ends. Hopefully those responsible were not colleagues.

Things looked bleak. And then in early 1974 the President of the United States assured his people that there would be no recession, and that we would remain number one. But despite Nixon's optimism things had the appearance of falling apart all over the world. Especially after the terrorism which had just occurred in Rome and Athens, leaving a total of thirty-two people dead. Indeed, it was the most vicious attack in the five year history of Arab terrorism.

Even Male Chauvinism came under attack in 1973. Billie Jean King in mid-September soundly defeated Bobby Riggs and the male ego on the tennis courts. Chauvinists all over the nation had to admit women were good for something other than housework. They could not deny the fact that Billie Jean was great. Some chauvinists went so far as to rate her up with Gloria Steinem, and Secretariat (Triple Crown Winner, 1973).

And where does all this bring us? Looking back we see that the world hasn't changed much for the better. For most people around the world it was the same as it was ten years ago. For Americans it was special because we began to feel some of the pain others have had for centuries. It hurt.

Man, in 1973, looked for solutions to the problems. As always, there were those who favored communism, socialism, and capitalism. In this journalist's opinion solutions lie in none of these. They have all failed in the past. Communism takes away any individuality and creativeness, thus becoming as viscious as Nazism. Capitalism is good for those who succeed. Those who fail remain failures. And socialism has never really had a chance because the other two are forever trying to convert it, consequently screwing things up royally. I believe there is only one answer, and that answer is in Jesus Christ. This is not to say that mere acceptance of, or belief in, Christ, is going to solve our problems. I'm not that naive. Our problems will exist as long as we do. Rather, acceptance of Christ means we have a moral responsibility to others around us. I, in my lifetime, have heard many people say they are "in life for myself." This attitude is what has made humanity a failure. Christians too often fail to accept the responsibility that Jesus Christ has placed on them. Non-Christians fail just as miserably to accept that same responsibility that human decency and their fellow men put on them.

This year was much the same as years in the past for us out at Whitworth. The turmoil shaking the earth's foundations did not touch our lives, except for what we received through the media. None of us froze from lack of heat; nor were any of us forced to go to bed starving. We were sheltered, as always. But what happens when we leave Whitworth, and must face that cold, viscious world on our own? What will happen when we no longer have our Tuesday evening Bible study or nightly prayer meetings to sustain our faith? What happens when we must prove our faith out there? It's easy to tell your admirable dorm brother that you love him. Can you say the same to one who reeks with disease and filth?

It does not matter what faith one practices, for with the exception of hedonism, they all teach a love for your fellow man. And it is this journalist's opinion that if you can not practice a love for your fellow man, then you have no right to expect anything from anyone, including your god.

Disease, poverty, hatred, violence, immorality; that's the way it is February 23, 1974. That's what you must fight. That's what Whitworth College is all about.

Sincerely,
Robert James Carlsen

Join the Army; travel to exotic, distant lands; meet exciting, unusual
people and kill them.

*We Need Time In Which To Grow,
Time To Understand
All The Things We Need To Know
To Grow To Be A Man.*

*We Need Time To Heal The Pain
That Aches Within Our Heart,
Time To Share Togetherness
Time To Be Apart.*

*We Need Time To Learn The Ways
To Overcome Our Fears,
Time For Many Things Unknown;
We Need Time For Tears.*

*Winter Sometimes Lasts So Long
And Spring Comes Oh, So Slow,
But Anything Worth Waiting For Takes Time In Which To Grow.*

Purpose: to search
and achieve that is what some brilliant scholar once called life. The term has stuck ever since. I often wonder what mine is. Perhaps it is to search and never achieve; but I pray in that search I will always have friends,
as I have found here.
